Introduction:

A compliance assistance site visit was conducted at FPL Area office West on October 22, 2013. The purpose of the inspection was to provide assistance complying with state and federal hazardous waste regulations. A file review indicated this facility may have at one time been a conditionally exempt small quantity generator. A 1986 letter indicates the facility status was changed to a non-handler of hazardous waste. However, no previous inspections were noted in the database.

At the time of this inspection it was determined that the facility is a non-handler of hazardous waste.

Process Description:

FPL Area Office West (AOW) consists of office buildings and meeting rooms and does not generate hazardous waste.

At the time of the inspection a dumpster was observed to be approximately 1/3 full of telephones and associated system devices including some electronic circuit boards. Following the inspection, Distribution Environmental Manager Loretta Cranmer followed up regarding the recycling of electronics including telephones from this facility. Ms. Cranmer said Telenet Systems Inc. had been contracted to recycle the old phones and phone system just replaced at this facility. She determined that Telenet had collected the majority of the phone system for recycling but had run out of room on the truck and placed the materials in the dumpster. FPL has terminated their contract with Telenet Systems Inc., recovered the phones and associated systems from the dumpster and will have them recycled.

No fluorescent lamps were observed to be stored at the time of the inspection. Ms. Cranmer indicated spent lamps are removed by a facility maintenance vendor and delivered to the FPL Venice service center located at 420 Albee Farm Road. The lamps are managed as universal waste until they are picked up by Ryder Integrated Logistics (registered transporter of universal waste lamps) and transported to FPL's Regulated Materials Facility in West Palm Beach.

Conclusion:

Electronics that are recycled are not considered solid waste and are not regulated under RCRA regulations.
